„Jackpot!!“

President Ahn shouted with great enthusiasm as glasses clattered together. Loud pop music was coming out of the stereo boxes and everyone seemed to be happy to finally celebrate the end of this season's touring.

Mi Nam had had no problems joining the group and learning the lyrics and melodies. So after all the stress with all the scandals the A.N.Jell group members finally came to a rest.

“Yeah, you really rocked them tonight... and after the break, when Tae Kyung comes back from Africa... you'll all be even more popular with the release of the new singles and all... I'm really proud of you all...”

President Ahn was making his usual speech but nobody really listened. They all seemed at least confident to rest a bit and even Tae Kyung was smiling as if someone had declared everyone to shower five times a day and to only touch something if they had used disinfection spray before. Scary... somehow. But everyone knew that he was only that happy because he would be sitting in a plane to Africa by tomorrow, visiting Mi Nyu there.

“Hey, Tae Kyung!... You're really lucky to have some sun for your complexion, it really will suit you. I also wouldn't say no to a bit sunny-flavoured skin...” Jeremy complained with his best I'm-too-cute-to-be-true-voice. “but you really have to send her our best wishes!”

“Speaking of his sister... has anybody seen Mi Nam anywhere around here?”, asked President Ahn with a look through the club.

“I think I may have seen him with Hee Yi earlier, but I don't know where they went...”, Jeremy again answered him, as if he would be the only one there with him, since the other two were more or less absent. Shin Woo was sitting next to him, calm as always.

"Okay, okay, guys... then I'll be leaving you alone for now. Enjoy the party. You really did a good job!", the President said, walking off to some people he seemed to know. That left the three men sitting there.

Jeremy

Sitting in the middle of a I'm-so-not-gonna-talk-cause-I'm-calm-and-cool Shin Woo and a I'm-so-making-you-all-jealous-cause-I'm-the-one-to-visit-her Tae Kyung, he really thought he could call the mood a bit weird.

"So...what are we going to do now, huh?...Dancing or something?", he finally asked to chill the situation a bit.

No response. Great.

"Ookay, guys. I'm going to grab a beer..."

Really. No way he was going to spend the whole night with the two of them alone, holding monologue. Since the thing with Mi Nyu, Shin Woo and Tae Kyung really weren't talking that much with each other.

Well, if it was only the talking he could have dealt with it but Tae Kyung acted arrogant as ever and of course you couldn't change the fact that he didn't exactly try to hide his satisfaction he was feeling because of his relationship with Mi Nyu.

And Shin Woo? He was even more silent these days. Okay, he never really was a chatterbox but he just seemed really absent lately. Probably he was still not over her. However, Jeremy wasn't going to join them expressing their depressing mood tonight. So he grabbed his beer and made his way to the dancefloor.

Tae Kyung

"So you have something you'll do in our holiday break, Shin Woo?", Tae Kyung asked trying to make at least a bit of conversation, since the chance of this situation turning from weird to awkward increased up to 97,3%.

"No, Tae Kyung. But I'm really glad that you have something you'll do in our holiday break.", he responded. Okay, clearly, that was ironic but still he could somehow understand him. (Hey, one gets the girl and the other one nothing. That's not fair!...)

"So... I guess I am glad that you're glad about it..."

They sat in silence. Again.

Actually he had to commit, that his attitude towards Shin Woo hadn't been that friendly lately and he was beginning to feel somehow that he owed him an explanation or something. Damn conscience.

"See, Shin Woo...I really feel like I should tell you that I'm happy to be with Go Mi Nyu now and that you... acknowledge it..."

If that wasn't a progress in being polite and nice and friendly and all...

Again. A moment of silence. Maybe it hadn't been so much of a progress...

"I know that you like her... and maybe it is good for her too"

Okay, if that wasn't surprising coming from Shin Woo. Tae kyung was utterly baffled.

"I thought you were that angry at me...", he asked a bit confused.

"I was, at first. But I spent much time thinking about everything and I think it's time to leave that all behind me. Being always around people like Jeremy... it's hard to keep in a depression, so... I think I'm gonna change that, Tae Kyung..."

At first, Tae Kyung came to the conclusion that Shin Woo might turned totally nuts but than he thought about what he'd said and it seemed to make at least sense.

"And when did you come to that conclusion?", he managed to ask.

"Actually, about five minutes ago", he responded. And then he stood up and disappeared in the direction where Jeremy had left earlier.

Appearing out of nowhere with a surprisingly cheered-up-smile on the dancefloor, Shin Woo joined the Blonde in what should propably look like dancing, even though Jeremy's cute up and down swinging looked more like and advertise moves for antidepressiants.

"So you declared your depression for over, hyung?", Jeremy was asking him, more shouting than speaking.

"I guess I did"

"So you're yourself again for now, hyung?", he asked as they got closer.

"I guess so"

"That's good because then we will not only celebrate our holidays but also the end of your depression time together."

And after months seeing not any honest smile from Shin Woo, this one now even seemed to be brighter and sweeter than ever.
